Administrative History¹

The Grand Pre Marsh Body (hereafter the Body), incorporated in 1949, includes all Proprietors² of tidal lands protected by the Grand Pre and Wickwire Dykes.³ The Executive Committee of the Body is typically made up of Proprietors and consists of five members including the chairman, vice chairman, secretary, treasurer, and auditor. This Committee is appointed by a Nominating Committee at the annual general meeting of the Body to serve a two-year term. The Executive Committee administers and directs the business affairs of the Body. All major decisions affecting the Body are made by a majority wins electoral system. The Body holds the power to assess and tax the Proprietors annually.

In 1948 and 1949, the Federal Government of Canada and the Nova Scotia Provincial Government both passed legislation to assist in the repair and rehabilitation of the marshlands in the Maritimes. The Body signed an agreement with the Maritime Marshland Rehabilitation Act (hereafter the M.M.R.A.) and so was incorporated under the Ministry of Agriculture and Marketing, to be governed by the Maritime Reclamation Act of Nova Scotia.

The government's duty was to assist in the construction, reconstruction and maintenance of the dykes, aboiteaux, and breakwaters. The Body made agreements with each Proprietor for used and damaged land during the construction and reconstruction of the dyke systems. Proprietors were not to interfere or hinder the M.M.R.A.'s duties. If no agreement was made between the Proprietor and the Body, expropriation of land could occur.⁴ The repairs needed were assessed annually and contracts drawn up between the Ministry and the Body before work began. The Body was reimbursed and paid by the province for drainage construction and maintenance.

One main role of the Body, as stated in their by-laws, has always been "to ensure that land use and development of the marshlands is authorized only for the purposes and practices of agriculture." In the 1990's this was challenged by The Town of Wolfville. The Town wanted jurisdiction over the marshlands within their boundaries and took the issue to the Nova Scotia Supreme Court for a decision. The Town claimed that the Planning Act of 1978 gave them jurisdiction over the dykelands whereas the Body, under the Maritime Reclamation Act, claimed to have been given agricultural planning jurisdiction over the same lands. In response, the Joint ⁴ Such as in the case of Waldon Kennedy in the 1950's.

Executive of the Bishop-Beckwith and Grand Pre Marsh Bodies worked together to collectively defend the marsh bodys' stance, with Ruth Conrad as acting secretary. The Joint Executive received financial and moral support from the Department of Agriculture and other marsh bodies around the province in the court case. In 1995, the Supreme Court ruled jurisdiction of the marshlands remained with the Marsh Bodies but the Town of Wolfville appealed the decision. In 1996, the Nova Scotia Court of Appeal left the dykelands without any means of protection from non-agricultural development.

In 1995, the Dykelands Preservation Society was launched as a non-profit organization, in interest of protecting and preserving agricultural heritage. This was started in response to the concern raised over the Town of Wolfville's intentions to allow non-agricultural development to the dykelands.

On October 21, 1995, the Grand Pre and Bishop-Beckwith Marsh Bodies held a 235th year celebration for the Marsh Body.

For reasons of historic authenticity, all file titles provided by the author and captions provided by the photographer are transcribed unedited. The spelling of both peoples' and places' names has changed with time, so inaccuracies and inconsistencies in the titles are unavoidable. Files and captions may also contain inaccuracies or terms that would now be considered offensive.
